

UV contributors

KENNETH LINGE'S loves are simple: watching the Jazz with his boys, listening to music with his girls, and either photographing people or teaching others to do the same. He enjoys Utah's four seasons, which remind him of his native Norway. His clients include Mitsubishi, Canon and Bennett Communications. He also photographs weddings and children. Kenneth regularly teaches in Europe and has added local classes to his schedule at Pictureline in Salt Lake City. In this issue, he captures Bron Roylance for our cover story.

MARY CRAFTS owns Culinary Crafts with her husband, Ron. She also hosts "Culinary Creations," which airs on Saturday mornings on KBYU. In this issue, she reviews Shoots, a new Chinese restaurant at the Shops at Riverwoods in Provo.

CONNIE SOKOL is the mother of six, columnist for the Deseret News, Education Week speaker and president of LIFEChange. In this issue, she tells us how to realistically approach the new year.

AARON TAYLOR is an experienced graphic designer, illustrator, and the former editorial cartoonist at the Daily Herald in Provo from 2005-07. He received the 1997 Association of American Editorial Cartoonists' Locher Award for outstanding college cartoonist in North America. He currently is the creative director for a construction management firm in Salt Lake City and enjoys spending time with his wife and two children.

EMILY EYRING is a junior at BYU-Idaho studying print journalism and English. Before interning with Utah Valley Magazine, she spent three years in Tokyo with her family. In addition to an acquired taste for sightseeing and sushi, Emily enjoys reading and running. In this issue, she digs into Utah Valley's "best" by compiling and highlighting the winners of our annual Best of Utah Valley contest.

LAUREN CRAIG is a senior and student body officer at Timpanogos High School in Orem. She is interning at Utah Valley Magazine and planning to attend BYU in the fall. As well as being an avid tennis player, she loves her guitar, politics and hot chocolate. In this issue, she compiles Utah Valley's Chinese restaurants and explores why mountains are our favorite reason to love Utah Valley.

The Freshest
WHOLE GRAIN
Breads

EVEN KIDS LOVE OUR WHOLE GRAINS!

898 North State
Orem, UT 84057
(801) 224-0303

1774 N University
Pkwy. #48
Provo, UT 84604
(801) 373-9816

